On June 19, 2020 UCLA University Housing released housing rates for the 2020-2021 academic year. We understand that the new rates may present new challenges for students and families. Below are some important facts about how your Financial Aid award maybe impacted.

- University Housing will inform Financial Aid and Scholarships on who will live on campus for 2020-2021, at which time we will recalculate students’ awards to include the new 2020-2021 housing rates. You do not need to inform Financial Aid and Scholarships office if you will live on-campus

- Students residing in University Residence Halls during 2020-2021 are considered on campus students

- If you are eligible for University Grant aid, your grant will be increased to help with the increased costs of housing. You do not need to inform Financial Aid and Scholarships office if you will live on-campus

- Students can expect to receive a 2020-2021 Financial Aid Notification (FAN) via MyUCLA in late July-August

- Factors such as filing a late FAFSA/DREAM Application and/or not having financial need will continue to determine your financial aid eligibility

- For additional questions about housing rate information, visit the University Housing Office website